She is teaming with playwright Jenny Laird and the illustrators-sisters Kelly Matthews and Nichole Matthews to adapt her work for graphic novels. The first release will be an adaptation of the first "Magic Tree House" book, "Dinosaurs Before Dark," and is scheduled for May 4. Future editions are to come out every six months. The book series introduced "the world to Jack and Annie, a brother and sister who discover a magical tree house," according to the "Magic Tree House" website. The first book set in the tree house, "Dinosaurs Before Dark," takes Jack and Annie on their inaugur journey: an adventure in prehistoric times. "I'm so excited for Jack and Annie's time travel adventures to reach a new generation of readers who are drawn to the thrilling visual experience that graphic novels provide," Osborne said in a statement Tuesday. children to learn more about world history and instill in them a lifelong love of reading." The original American series was illustrated by Salvatore Murdocca until 2016, after which AG Ford took over. Other illustrators have been used for foreign-language editions. The series consists of two groups. The first group consists of books 1–28, in which Morgan Le Fay sends Jack and Annie Smith, two normal children who are siblings from the fictional small town of Frog Creek, Pennsylvania, on numerous adventures and missions with a magical tree house. The second group, referred to as the Magic Tree House: Merlin Missions, Jack and Annie are given quests by the ancient wizard Merlin the Magician. These books are longer than the previous 28, and some take place in fantasy realms like Camelot. Kathleen and Teddy are two apprentices who befriend Jack and Annie during their adventures, with one of these adventures being to free Kathleen from a spell. The two occasionally join Jack and Annie, and, when they don't, provide them support instead. During Super Edition #1, Teddy sends them on a mission instead of Morgan or Merlin. The companion Magic Tree House Fact Trackers are co-written by Mary Pope Osborne with her husband Will Osborne wrote the books with Morgan sending the children on missions. Then she switched over to them being sent on missions by Merlin. About 10 years later, in 2014, she switched back to writing only the books with Morgan sending them on missions. These books were, again, much shorter. In addition to the books listed below, Mary Pope Osborne appears to still be writing the series, having released "#36 Sunlight on the Snow Leopard" in 2022. Not only that, but the first four novels have been adapted into graphic novels. Series background After graduating college, Osborne and a friend went traveling.[1] Osborne spent time in Crete and traveled through Iraq, Iran, India, Afghanistan, Turkey, Lebanon, Syria, and Pakistan.[2] The trip came to an end when Osborne experienced blood poisoning in Nepal requiring her to stay in a hospital for a couple of weeks where she read The Lord of the Rings.[1] Remarking on her travels Osborne said, "That journey irrevocably changed me. Experience was gathered that serves as a reference point every day of my life. I encountered worlds of light and worlds of darkness — and planted seeds of the imagination that led directly to my being an author of children's books."[2] Osborne's travels and experiences have factored largely into her own writing, while her writing has allowed her to experience some of the thrills of traveling. As she said, "Without even leaving my home, I've traveled around the globe, learning about the religions of the world."[3] Osborne's writing career began "one day, out of the blue"[3] when she wrote Run, Run As Fast As You Can in 1982. The book itself is semi-autobiographical in nature, according to Osborne: "The girl was a lot like me and many of the incidents in the story were similar to happenings in my childhood."[3] The book served as the starting point for Osborne's writing career. Her early work received mixed reviews.[4][5] Her work includes young adult novels, picture books, retellings of mythology and fairy tales, biographies, mysteries, a six part series of the Odyssey, a book of American Tall Tales, and a book for young readers about the major world religions. The idea for the Magic Tree House series came when Penguin Random House asked Osborne to start writing a series of children's books.[6] From the beginning Osborne knew she wanted to include time travel.[6] The idea for the treehouse being the time-travel inducing object only came to her when she and her husband saw one on a walk through the forest in Pennsylvania.[6] The idea for the treehouse being the time-travel inducing object only came to her when she and her husband saw one on a walk through the forest in Pennsylvania.[6] The idea for the treehouse being the time-travel.[6] The treehouse being the time-travel.[6] The time-trav Magic Tree House up to 12 hours a day and seven days a week[7] and has used space at shared office space, The Writer's Room.[8] She has modeled her writing clear, lively, well-paced prose in both her stories and her informational books."[2] Main Characters When Osborn started writing the series she wrote Jack as her self-insert character and added Annie in as a typical annoying younger sister.[9] After writing her in, Osborn eventually decided to add Annie in as another main character.[9] Osborne highlights Annie's bravery as a characteristic to serve as a main difference between Annie and herself, as Osborne has noted that she often wished she were braver than she was.[9] Jack Smith Jack is the older brother who is known for his love of books and learning, an attribute Osborne says connects her to the character.[10] Jack has a tendency to be cautious in his approach.[11] According to the original illustrations by Sal Murdocca, Jack is pictured with brown hair, red glasses, and is taller than Annie.[12] Annie Smith Annie is the younger sister and is known for her bravery, impulsive decisions, and her care for the people and animals around her.[10] According to the original illustrations by Sal Murdocca, Annie is pictured with medium-length blond hair, often in double braids, and bangs.[12] Magic Tree House books According to its official website, Magic Tree House books are for beginning chapter book readers.[13] Arc Number Title First printed Companion book The Mystery of the Magic Tree House (#1) #1 Dinosaurs Before Dark (UK Title: Valley of the Magic Tree House (#1) #1 Dinosaurs Plot: Jack and Annie discover the tree house and, using the magical books there, they unwittingly travel back to the late Cretaceous period (65 million years ago) where they meet a Pteranodon that saves them from a Tyrannosaurus rex. Repetition The veries and illustrations by the original artist, Sal Murdocca. Mary Pope Osborne fills this book with advice and with life lessons to share with the readers of the Magic Tree House [21]. repetition in the books is one quality that makes the series easier for younger readers to understand.[22] Each book includes Jack and Annie traveling to some time or place via their magic treehouse to solve a mystery.[23] The objective of their mission is often clear and usually involves collecting an object or meeting a specific person of historical importance.[24] Repetition also occurs in the actual writing of the books. The sentences, "The wind started to blow. The tree house started to spin. It spun faster and faster. Then everything was still. Absolutely still" occur in at least 32 of the 'Magic Tree House' books as of 2005.[9] Repetition is known to make learning to read easier, as kids get to practice seeing and hearing the same sentences until they are comfortable with them.[22] Legacy Mary Pope Osborne's books have been named to a number of the Best Books, and Bank Street College of Education.[2] She has received honors from such organizations as the National Council of Teachers of English, The Children's Book Council, and the International Reading Association.[2] She received the 1992 Diamond State Reading Association.[2] She received the 1992 D Leander Award. [26] She has also received awards from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. [28] Ms. Osborne served two separate terms as president of the Authors Guild and also chaired its Children's Book Committee.[2] She has since traveled extensively in the states and throughout the world, visiting schools and speaking on issues related to reading and books. In 2011, she attended the Tokyo International Film Festival for the premiere of the Magic Tree House anime film and visited schools in the tsunami-hit area of Japan.[29] The film grossed 5.7 million dollars; Osborne donated all her proceeds into her educational works.[30] She was profiled on NBC's Rock Center with Brian Williams for her continued efforts to get books into the hands of underserved children look up to, "for a child to value someone who writes books is so extraordinary." [30] To celebrate the 20th anniversary of the Magic Tree House series in 2012, Ms. Osborne 's mission with Classroom Adventures is to inspire children to read and to love reading [31] while simultaneously helping kids to read at grade level by the end of 3rd grade.[30] Free of charge, the program provides a set of online educational resources for teachers and allows for Title 1 schools to apply for free Magic Tree House books.[31] Under Classroom Adventures, Ms. Osborne, in partnership with the First Book organization in Washington, D.C., has donated hundreds of thousands of Magic Tree House books to underserved schools.[32] Adaptations Magic Tree House brand has taken on other forms. A full-scale musical adaptation was created by Will Osborne and Randy Court; Magic Tree House: The Musical, premiered in September 2007.[33] Osborne hoped that it would have the same kind of kid and adult appeal as The Lion King or Mary Poppins.[33] Based on the Magic Tree House book Christmas in Camelot, the Musical has toured nationally[33][34] and had a cast album.[35] A planetarium show; Magic Tree House: Space Mission, also created by Will Osborne, is produced and presented exclusively at the Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.[36] In 2011, Will Osborne collaborated with New Orleans composer Allen Toussaint and Ain't Misbehavin' co-creator Murray Horwitz to write A Night in New Orleans, a musical adaptation of Magic Tree House #42: A Good Night for Ghosts about the life of Louis Armstrong. The show features an ensemble cast and live jazz band. It premiered in 2012 at the New Jersey Performing Arts Center and was shown free to every Newark 4th grade student.[37] Magic Tree House Kids Shows are theatrical adaptations of selected titles in the Magic Tree House Kids Shows are theatrical adaptations of selected titles in the Magic Tree House Kids Shows are theatrical adaptations of selected titles in the Magic Tree House Kids Shows are theatrical adaptations of selected titles in the Magic Tree House Kids Shows are theatrical adaptations of selected titles in the Magic Tree House Kids Shows are theatrical adaptations of selected titles in the Magic Tree
